An Historical Overview of Otago Harbour Te Awa Ōtākou is a summarised political history of the coasts which front the city of Dunedin. It walks us through the events of prehistorical migrations, the merging of worlds, industrialisation, and through to the modern era with a focus on power, autonomy, material relationships and ecology. With twenty-eight succinct chapters and archival images, it acts to be a guide for the curious, to position us in our broader contexts, and to remind us of the decisions which built the world and systems around us.

An Historical Overview of Otago harbour Te Awa Ōtākou is a follow up to 5ever books' best-selling book An Historical Overview of Lambton Harbour. It is now available for wholesale purchase through independent distributor Expensive Hobby.
